

Will Ubuntu 6.10 Beta finally make me think about switching?

By srlinuxx

Created 11/10/2006 - 12:43am

Submitted by srlinuxx on Wednesday 11th of October 2006 12:43:19 AM Filed under Ubuntu [1]

I have for many years considered myself a "Professional Linux Installer". I bet there are some readers that know what I am talking about. In the past, I would try many distros out but never really liking any of them. I tried the SUSE's and Mandrake's of long ago but I finally settled on Xandros.

Xandros wasnt the most up-to-date distro but heah, "It Just Works"

But now, I think I may have found another.... Ubuntu may be calling me to switch. So I have documented my experience with the new Ubuntu 6.10 Beta. It's like all the other screenshot reviews I have done. Only now this distro did not fail me once during it's initial install. Plus, it's lightning fast GNOME desktop really impressed me.

Full Story [2].

Ubuntu

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/10146>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/121>

[2] <http://www.reviewlinux.com/?m=show&id=3456>