- All Systems Go! - The Userspace Linux Conference [2]

At Kinvolk we spend a lot of time working on and talking about the Linux userspace. We can regularly be found presenting our work at various events and discussing the details of our work with those who are interested. These events are usually either very generally about open source, or focused on a very specific technology, like containers, systemd, or ebpf. While these events are often awesome, and absolutely essential, they simply have a focus that is either too broad, or too specific.

- Actor Joseph Gordon-Levitt to Speak on Art and the Internet at Open Source Summit North America [3]

Actor and online entrepreneur Joseph Gordon-Levitt will be speaking at Open Source Summit North America ? Sept. 11-14 in Los Angeles, CA ? about his experiences with collaborative technologies.

From October 4?6 developers, software architects, engineers, and community organizers will gather in Vancouver, British Columbia for Node.js Interactive—an event hosted by the Node.js Foundation. The conference features keynotes, presentations and workshops that are aimed to help Node.js users better understand how to work with Node.js and JavaScript as well as best practices in contributing to the project.
