- Killer Chambers looks like an insane challenge to make you throw your gamepad, now available on Linux[2]

Think you're made of tougher stuff? Killer Chambers will probably test you, given how you need some seriously slick reaction times and a good memory to survive it.

- Elsewhere is an in-development game of crafting, exploration and survival that could be interesting[3]

For those who love their Minecraft-like games, Elsewhere from the developer of Hearthlands might be one to keep an eye on. Early days for it currently, so I will be keeping tabs on this one to see if they manage to make it into something special.

I actually quite liked Hearthlands, so I'm keen to see more from this developer.

- Trapped inside a panic room, can you save yourself and your mafia empire? Save Koch is out[4]

In Save Koch you play as mafia kingpin, Jeffrey Koch, who is under threat from a hidden mastermind trying to take your place. It released last week with same-day Linux support, as the first game from developer Wooden Monkeys.
