

Report From LibreOffice Asia Conference and More Reasons to Move to LibreOffice

By Roy Schestowitz

Created 15/08/2019 - 8:57am

Submitted by Roy Schestowitz on Thursday 15th of August 2019 08:57:24 AM Filed under LibO [1] Microsoft [2] OSS [3]

- LibreOffice Asia Conference Report: Part 2 [4]

Foreword: the LibreOffice Asia Conference was successfully held in May 2019 in Tokyo. Kuan-Ting Lin, a university student and civic tech reporter also attended this conference and gives his observations here. In Part II, Kuan-Ting starts with the Open Document Format, and expounds on how to form an open government and better autonomy of Taiwan.

The 'Taiwanese Language channel' (tâi-gí-tâi) of the Public Television Service (PTS) in Taiwan started its broadcasting service in July 2019. This channel became possible only because the National Languages Act was approved in parliament. This policy was rooted by many in the decision to improve expression, alleviation of limits on speeches, and the consolidation of autonomy following the new law.

After a long-time struggle, the state also sees a silver lining regarding another autonomy issue: document liberation.

- Let's see what the sweet, kind, new Microsoft that everyone loves is up to. Ah yes, forcing more Office home users into annual subscriptions

[5]

Microsoft is continuing its campaign to drive Office users onto a subscription plan by killing off its discounted Home Use program.

The program covers individuals whose employer already has an Office subscription and allowed them to download standalone software on a separate home machine for a greatly reduced price of just $15. But no more.

Eligible users will still get a discount ? but only on an Office subscription package. No more standalone software. Microsoft is keen that everyone recognizes this change for the wonderful opportunity it is.

"Microsoft is updating the Home Use Program to offer discounts on the latest and most up to date products such as Office 365, which is always up to date with premium versions of Office apps across all your devices," it chirpily announced in a new FAQ question this week, before noting that "Office Professional Plus 2019 and Office Home and Business 2019 are no longer available as Home Use Program offers."

Why the change? You won't believe this but it seems money is at the root of it. Rather than pay $15 for a piece of software that you can then use for years, Microsoft's "update" will require home users (whose employers already have a subscription with Microsoft) to pay either $49 or $70 for the Personal and Home Office 365 services respectively. Every year.

LibO Microsoft OSS

---

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/126976>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/138>

[2] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/62>

[3] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/72>

[4] <https://blog.documentfoundation.org/blog/2019/08/15/libreoffice-asia-conference-report-part-2/>

[5] https://www.theregister.co.uk/2019/08/13/microsoft\_office\_subscriptions/