- Librem 5 December 2019 Software Update [3]

Although we're well into 2020, the changelog-style software progress reports for the turn of the year have yet to be published. Let's fix that by giving a brief update of what happened in December.

Some of the activities below were already mentioned in their own articles in Purism's news archive; others will be covered in more depth in future articles. This is just a taste of all the work that goes into making the Librem 5 software stack. You can follow development more closely at source.puri.sm.

- An Interview with fphemeral: Community Member & Librem 5 Early Adopter [4]

I recently had the pleasure of chatting with fphemeral, a longtime Purism community member, Librem 13 user and Librem 5 early-adopter. What stood out about fphemeral's story was how big of role community and the the flexibility of our products played on his journey to improved privacy. Like many of our passionate community members, fphemeral is also developing a range of useful apps for his Librem 5 and sharing them with the community. Here's the full conversation we recently had on Librem Chat.
