There are 38 different desktops or window managers in Fedora 31. You could try a different one every day for a month, and still have some left over. Some have very few features. Some have so many features they are called a desktop environment. This article can't go into detail on each, but it's interesting to see the whole list in one place.

To be on this list, the desktop must show up on the desktop manager's selection list. If the desktop has more than one entry in the desktop manager list, they are counted just as that one desktop. An example is 'GNOME', 'GNOME Classic' and 'GNOME (Wayland)'. These all show up on the desktop manager list, but they are still just GNOME.
