Testdriving srlinuxx 2007

By One Crazy Texan

I took a look at srlinuxx a couple of years ago and she was quite the gal. I thought this would be a good chance to catchup and see how she has progressed over the past few years.

As you know srlinuxx comes complete with house, car and large TV for watching Nascar (a must have for any man). srlinuxx prefers the homemaker life as opposed to working in a corporate enviroment. While some men might be put off with that I found it somewhat refreshing.

At the home one finds a modest brick home with attached garage and low maintenance fenced yard. Guys will appreciate this as you wont be breaking your back mowing it. The garage is a plus as you know us guys love to tinker in the garage. There are additional plugins for the beer fridge and plenty of room to get your tinkering on. In addition there are plenty of nooks and crannys to hide your men stuff.

Inside the home is well laid out, clean and inviting. Crystal figures are placed through out the home giving it nice eye candy. In addition to the common places such as bedroom, kitchen and living room the home also features a nice computer office where one can get their linux fixes.

I found srlinuxx to be quite attractive. Shoulder length blonde hair parted on the side and feather bangs makes one want to run their fingers through it. Nicely shaped with a pretty smile, button nose and a country twang when she talks makes one just want smile. Not only is she pretty but she does Linux too! She is attentive, affectionate and you'll never long for good conversation. She is defiently a gal you want to keep on your arm for a long time!
