The first LinuxCon may be over, but the knowledge and community shared at the conference will be around for a long time.

Expert sessions, informative keynotes, and multiple opportunities to kick back and socialize with Linux consumers of all stripes--these marked the flavor for LinuxCon. Attendees appreciated the balance of learning and information they got from the sessions--feedback from those I (unscientifically) surveyed was overwhelmingly positive, and I was asking for all comments, not just the good.
