

Back From The Wilderness With Mandriva One 2010

By srlinuxx

Created 05/12/2009 - 6:08pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Saturday 5th of December 2009 06:08:34 PM Filed under MDV [1]

With so many exciting new Linux distributions being released in the annual autumnal rush, you might wonder why I chose Mandriva 2010 (<http://www2.mandriva.com/>) to get back into the swing of Linux things.

I have the ISOs for Fedora 12, Ubuntu 9.10 and Linux Mint 8 sat on my hard drive, but I think it was hearing about Mandriva's excellent interpretation of the KDE 4.3.2 desktop environment that sealed it.

I have to confess that once the initial shine wore off, KDE 4 left me quite cold; I've little time for its side-scrolling kicker-style menu, and don't even get me started on those desktop-cluttering widgoids, or whatever they're called (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Plasma_\(KDE\))).

But Mandriva 2010 has gone a long way toward changing my mind about KDE 4, at least the One variant I installed on my recently-acquired desktop test rig has.

Anyway, back to Mandriva 2010. [2]

MDV

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/41609>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/111>

[2] <http://reddevil62-techhead.blogspot.com/2009/12/back-from-wilderness-with-mandriva-one.html>