

Can You Trust Google? Why Take a Chance?

By srlinuxx

Created 20/02/2011 - 6:45pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Sunday 20th of February 2011 06:45:42 PM Filed under Google [1]

Google is the dominant search engine in the world right now, as everyone on the Internet surely knows. However, there are things I don't love about Google. They're very good at profiling you and targeting ads to you.

Based on the contents of your Google searches and the contents of your emails, you receive targeted advertisements. I don't like anyone knowing my habits and interests that well. I'm not saying someone is sitting around at Google reading through my Gmail, but it is obvious that they are matching key words or something.

Another thing to be aware of about Google: They have political opinions and objectives. This isn't wrong, almost all corporations are influenced by or are influencers of government policies. I'm not going to get into what Google is all about politically, but they do have positions and take actions based on those positions.

rest here [2]

Google

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/51013>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/120>

[2] <http://www.russellhollander.com/2011/02/20/can-you-trust-google-why-take-a-chance/>