

Ready for Gnome 3.2? Meet Gnome Contacts

By srlinuxx

Created 01/06/2011 - 4:56pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Wednesday 1st of June 2011 04:56:20 PM Filed under Software [1]

The gnome developers are hard at work making the first linux desktop, that do not look like a cheap windows/mac rip off, even better. There are stupid mistakes they made along the way, but still Gnome 3.0 gives the best experience free software can offer by default. Obviously there are more feature need to be included to make it a complete replacement for your good old Gnome 2.x. For the time being you can use these extensions to get some functionalities back.

Anyway, Gnome developers continue its work to have a consistent behaviour across the entire desktop. With its next incarnation, the team also escalates this behaviour towards individual applications. Meet Gnome contacts, the contacts application that you will see in the 3.2 version of your awesome desktop.

rest here [2]

Software

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/52936>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/38>

[2] <http://justinstories.wordpress.com/2011/06/01/ready-for-gnome-3-2-meet-gnome-contacts/>