

Major gaps of Open Office Impress versus Microsoft Power Point: what do you think?

By srlinuxx

Created 02/07/2011 - 1:40am

Submitted by srlinuxx on Saturday 2nd of July 2011 01:40:44 AM Filed under OOo [1]

Yesterday Sergio, a user of OpenOffice Impress, sent to the OpenOffice.org discussion list his list of the "Major Gaps of OpenOffice Impress 3.3 vs. Microsoft Office PowerPoint".

Sergio compiled the list because, as much as he likes OpenOffice, "after struggling for over 1 year, sadly he had to stop using Open Office Impress and go back to Microsoft Power Point".

Personally, I have experienced and can confirm most of what Sergio lists as "File Processing issues". I haven't encountered the other problems, but that may be because I use Impress very little these days, and I only need it for very simple slideshows. I don't even know yet, for lack of personal experience, if and how the current LibreOffice version of Impress would be different. However, I am very curious to know if such differences exists.

rest here [2]

OOo

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/53526>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/127>

[2] <http://freesoftware.zona-m.net/major-gaps-of-open-office-impress-versus-microsoft-power-point-what-do-you-think/>