As you might have heard, KDE is, more or less, getting a whole new rewrite again. Some folks may read (or write) that with dread given how the last rewrite went for users there for a while. However, perhaps we should take a look at some of the good things instead. One that's come to light recently is a brand new widgets explorer.

Marco Martin [2] (a.k.a. notmart), KDE Plasma developer, recently shared [3] some images of the upcoming 4.9 Widgets explorer. You know, it's that thing that pops up when you click the Acorn and then Add Widgets.
