Red Hater David Zeuthen in his blog introduces all the new features in Gnome Disks 3.6 and also refers to the upcoming new options for Gnome 3.8. There are some nice additions; some are just optics and some are useful tools, but in my opinion not everything is perfect and complete.

Gnome 3.6 UI freezes in about two and half weeks from now (August, 20) and I don't think that we are going to see more changes here. Most of the features below have implemented and merged in Gnome upstream many days ago, so this isn't something as a 'New Things on Disks' but an overall review.
