So I've been working with Fedora for over a week now, and I have to say that it's been fun. I haven't hit any major issues that are deal breakers for me. I've fully personalised Fedora's Gnome Shell desktop environment, and I'm really happy. However, I think it's time to go back to Ubuntu, and here's why?

Like I said, I've really enjoyed my time with Fedora, but after working with it for so long I've realised that it's not technically Fedora that I'm enjoying, but rather Gnome Shell. I'm enjoying it a lot more than Unity, mainly because of the customisability of the environment. I'm starting to find that actually using Fedora is getting frustrating, but I think that's mainly because of my lack of knowledge than anything else.
